Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is truly amazing that a company that has done so much for the productivity of a nation should find it the subject of a lawsuit. If the consumer does not want to buy it, they vote with their feet. The only monopoly I know of that has ever existed was accomplished through government legislation and collusion. The market has never permitted one.

If everyone is so upset with Microsoft, let them use OS/2, Unix or any of the other operating software on the market.

This is just plain wrong. The right would be for the judge to say the people have spoken in the market place. No further comment or adjudication is necessary.

Sincerely,
